

About the Authors

Section One

ALTON L. TAYLOR is Director, Summer Session and Professor, Center for the Study of Higher Education at the University of Virginia. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Virginia in research methods and curriculum theory. In addition to having been director of the summer session for 28 years, Dr. Taylor has taught doctoral courses in higher education management since 1971. He has been very active in the Association of University Summer Sessions (AUSS) and the North American Association of Summer Sessions (NAASS) professional associations.

DUDLEY J. DOANE is Assistant Director, Summer Session and Director, Center for the American Language and Culture at the University of Virginia. Scheduled to receive his Ph.D. in higher education administration in May 2003 from Virginia, Mr. Doane remains involved in summer session administration and international activities at the University. He has been active in NAASS annual conferences.

HOWARD MARTIN is Associate Vice-Chancellor for Extended Programs and Dean of Continuing Education at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Among his many responsibilities is that for the University's summer sessions, one of the largest and oldest summer schools in North America. Dr. Martin holds a doctorate in Germanic languages and literature from UW-Madison with specialization in the older forms of those languages.

Section Two

BRIAN BUDENZER is the Coordinator of the L&S Teaching Assistant Resource Center in the University of Wisconsin-Madison's College of Letters and Science. He holds a Ph.D. from UW-Madison in art history.

•• About the Authors ••

His teaching and research interests include American architecture, graduate student professional development, and the use of technology in teaching.

NANCY WESTPHAL-JOHNSON is Associate Dean for Undergraduate Education in the College of Letters and Science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She is also Summer Sessions Dean for the College. With a Ph.D. from UW-Madison in educational administration, most of her research interests focus on general education in the research university.

ANNE K. HEINZ is Dean of Continuing Education and Associate Vice Chancellor for Summer Session at the University of Colorado-Boulder. She earned a doctoral degree from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in higher and continuing education administration. Dean Heinz's research interests include program development, administration and evaluation.

CAROL J. MEHLS is Program Director for Summer Session at the University of Colorado-Boulder. She earned a doctoral degree in American history from CU-Boulder. Her research interests include program development and American water policy.

STUART PALMER is a senior lecturer in the School of Engineering & Technology at Deakin University in Australia. He has a BE in electronics, an MBA in technology management and a doctorate from Deakin University in engineering management education. Dr. Palmer lectures in technology management and his research interests include engineering education and new media in education.

ROBERT T. BARRETT is Associate Dean and Professor of Management in the School of Business at Francis Marion University. He earned a doctorate in management science from Virginia Tech. Dr. Barrett teaches and does research in management science, statistics, and operations management. He was the Director of Summer School at FMU for the 1999 and 2000 summer sessions.

LESLIE BARNES-YOUNG is on the faculty of the psychology department at Francis Marion University. She holds a doctorate in counseling psychology from the University of Akron. In 1999, she also became the Director of Academic Advising and Retention. Dr. Barnes-Young regularly teaches courses during the summer months.